

For Immediate Release

=====

Date: April 1, 2011

Contact: Joe Neigel, Snohomish County Human Services, 425-388-7227

Darrington designated a substance abuse prevention site

Darrington - Darrington and the Darrington School District have been selected to receive support to focus on keeping youth, young adults and others free of alcohol and other drug misuse, while creating a healthier community. The support, which includes training, technical assistance, and community and school-based prevention programs, is from the state Department of Social and Health Services' Division of Behavioral Health and Recovery (DBHR).

Darrington has formed a coalition which will begin services no later than July 1, 2011 and invites community members to be involved with planning and implementing programs.

Darrington is one of 19 communities and school districts statewide funded by DBHR's Prevention Redesign Initiative (PRI) to develop new coalitions or support existing ones. DBHR is supporting this Initiative in order to focus community and school-based prevention resources in the same targeted communities across the state, increasing opportunities to see community-wide changes to drug prevalence rates and associated consequences.

"A number of factors were considered in selecting Darrington and the Darrington School District for services", said Joe Neigel, Snohomish County Human Services Prevention Coordinator. "These included a variety of data regarding substance abuse along with the Darrington School District's readiness to benefit from these services".

The Coalitions will be represented by parents/grandparents, youth, healthcare professionals, educators, law enforcement, faith leaders, civic/volunteer groups, government, substance abuse prevention and treatment organizations, business, media, schools and youth-serving organizations.

To achieve the primary goal of reducing underage drinking and the related negative consequences such as juvenile crime, the community coalitions will identify the highest prevention needs, plan and implement evidence-based strategies, leverage local resources and evaluate the impact of selected programs.

"Our goal in redesigning and targeting our state prevention services is to leverage enough resources in the highest-need communities to achieve greater reductions in substance abuse and the harm it causes", said David Dickinson, DBHR's Director. "Community leaders are prepared to use these resources to help more young people succeed, and to improve the health and safety of their community" added Dickinson.

PRI communities will focus on reducing underage drinking among 8th and 10th graders, improving academic performance, and reducing juvenile crime. DBHR will expand PRI in the next three years to identify approximately 50 high need communities in Washington State.

State and county data from the 2010 Washington State Healthy Youth Survey will be released in March and available online. Tips for parents for preventing underage drinking can be found at www.StartTalkingNow.org.

To find out how to get involved with the Whatcom Prevention Coalition, contact Joe Neigel at 425-388-7227.